Accession Number	2006.5
Physical Description	5.2 m of textual records – 21 posters
Start Date	c.1972-
End Date	c.1996
Biographical Sketch or Administrative History	In the fall of 1972, the Prince George Women's Centre was created, and this began a legacy of women's centres in Prince George. It began when a group of women, after being involved with the local production of the play "Lysistrata", decided that Prince George needed a women's centre. Although it was involved in other activities, the main goal of the Prince George Women's Centre was to develop a transition home for women and their children who needed shelter for whatever reason. This goal was realized in 1974, with the opening of the Phoenix Transition House. However, due to a changing focus and a stronger political and feminist position, the Prince George Women's Centre faced internal upheaval, which resulted in a name change taking place in September of 1976. The group was now called the Prince George Women's Collective. A main focus of The Prince George Women's Collective was its counseling and referral services. The Prince George Women's Collective lasted until January of 1978, when controversy regarding the firing of two staff affected its activities and members voted to dissolve the organization, and replace it with the Prince George Women's Equal Rights Association (known commonly as W.E.R.A.) in January of 1978. WERA set out to distance itself from negative publicity (firing of board member) and to focus on educating the public on women's issues. To that end, research and lobbying were a central focus; it produced a newsletter for women of Northern BC entitled 'Aspen', a publication which ran until 1983, when it closed in June 1983 due to a combination of financial pressures and volunteer burn-out. Right at the time that WERA was closing down, another group started in Prince George with the intention of filling the need for a resource centre for women in Prince George. The Prince George Women's Resource Centre opened their doors officially on September 1, 1983, and served the community for many years. Similar to the Women's Centre and the Women's Collective, the Prince George Women's Resource Centre was very service-oriented, and less politically oriented. The reasons for its closure is unclear, however evidence suggests that it lasted until sometime in 1987, when federal funding support was eliminated and the centre was no longer able to provide services to women in Prince George. Following the PG Women's Resource Centre, another group opened up an office on George Street called the Prince George Women's Connection. The only records contained in this collection regarding

	the PG Women's Connection are brochures and advertisements sent to them.
Scope and Content	Fonds consists of administrative files relating to funding, programs, other organizations, correspondence, meetings, constitutions, and a history of the women's movement in Prince George.
Notes	Files from each successive organization were passed on to the subsequent organization; hence provenance of some files unknown. Finding aid creator conducted interviews with some members to ascertain history of records.
Custodial History	Materials were donated to UNBC by a previous organization member; records had been transferred to the donor's home since the last organization closed in approximately 1987.
Arrangement Notes	Although the files were not in complete alphabetical order, it was determined that originally the majority of the information was kept in alphabetical order. Thus, where possible alphabetical order has been recreated.
